> A SENSIBLE UNDERTAKING .- A company has been formed at Huntington, W. Va, with a capital of $300,000, for the purpose of manufacturing nails from the raw material. The recent opening of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad has devel oped an inexhaustable amount of the choicest kind of iron ores, coal, limestone and building material, which can be delivered by boat or rail at a cost which will enable the company to manufacture iron at less than $18 per ton. Men of capital and skilled mechanics have not failed to take advantage of this fact, and hence the organization of the company relerred to. Some of the purposes of this company are to fill every position requir ing skill or trust with stockholders; to work independent of combinations and on a sliding scale of wages, to affect managers and employes alike; never to increase its capacity above fifty machines and work single turn-believing that cap ital and labor are correlatively equal and should work together in harmony. It is believed that by combining the advantages of cheap productiveness to advantages of cheap productiveness to an open market will insure constant and profitable employment to both.
